Tyrant, lords, heretics : Political propaganda in Late Medieval Italy

Conférence du LUHCIE organisée par Ilaria TADDEI

Paris, Bibliothèque Nationale de France, ms. lat. 6340

In 14th century, the formation of regional states (republics, principalities) represented a crucial phenomenon that re-shaped the political map of the Italian peninsula. In such a context, propaganda played an active role in the state-building process: by considering some specific cases (Milan, Florence, Verona) I will explain how these new political institutions tried to justify their power and to delegitimize opponents.
